

EDITORIAL

This issue marks our first anniversary. I should point out now that the Journal might never have come this far had it not been for the tireless efforts of Joan Magee who keeps everyone on his toes. Joan is the motor of CAANS and of CJNS regardless of who may be at the helm of either.

We are planning a special fourth issue which will focus on the Netherlandic presence in Canada. We have expanded our editorial board greatly and we are looking forward to all manner of articles treating this theme in the narrowest as well as in the broadest sense of the word. Personal experiences, artistic or scientific achievements, work in the field of religion or education, we see the list as endless because not only can you focus on the past or the present but we are also interested in any Netherlandic contributions or achievements wherever they occurred in the world as long as they can be considered of potential benefit to Canadians. As always, our aim is to acquaint Canadians with all aspects of the Lowlands, its inhabitants, as well as its descendents anywhere. So please start thinking about our fourth issue now and send us your article before February 1, 1981 because we hope to have the publication of this special Canadian issue coincide with the meeting of the Learned Societies which will be held in Halifax in May, 1981.

At this point, I would like to repeat my call for papers; just in case you missed it in the newsletter. In addition, I would very much appreciate it if you could have your paper in shape for publication by the time of the Learned Societies meeting of May, 1981, so that we may consider it for some future issue of CJNS.
